

Getting to know Huntington

As you may know, FirstMerit has now officially joined with Huntington, which means we can begin the process of uniting two banks that already have a lot in common. We both have deep roots and strong commitments in the Midwest. We've won similar awards for outstanding service and customer-friendly products. And we both believe in going the extra mile to help local businesses and communities thrive.

Together, we'll be even stronger. We'll have more financial resources at our disposal to assist your business. And to help you make the right financial decisions, your business banker will be able to call upon a much wider circle of specialists – including more bankers with knowledge of your industry.

We're committed to a smooth, simple transition in service, and we look forward to showing you what Huntington can do for your business.
