

FIRST INTERSTATE

At Huntington Bank, we see something big happening in Cleveland. This is Renee Csuhran. Welcome to Huntington's Best In Business. First Interstate Properties had a vision. Where others saw vacant land, they saw an unmet community need. Their vision was to bring an urban, large-format shopping center to life in the center of Cleveland. Today, Steelyard Commons has brought new residents to Downtown, revitalizing its core neighborhoods with fresh energy. But it wouldn't have happened without First Interstate Properties. A full-service real estate development and management company, they strive to create places of significance that add to the renaissance of Cleveland and its surrounding areas. Progress of this caliber requires honest, collaborative dialogue every step of the way. So when First Interstate Properties came to Huntington, they knew they'd be getting help from a bank working to share in their vision: making Cleveland stronger. For more episodes of Best in Business and to learn how your company can be featured on the show, visit Huntington.com/BestInBusiness. Huntington, Member FDIC.